The programme is studied over three years full-time, or four years if the option of a 12 month placement is taken. Students study four 30 credit modules per year. The first year comprises of four compulsory modules. These modules are designed to bring all students to a standard level of academic competence – and provide the foundations in the skills and knowledge needed to pursue further specialised study in management.

In the second year, students study three compulsory modules building on knowledge acquired in first year modules, but also broadening knowledge into essential issues needed to study business organisations: the behaviour of people within organisations, the organisation of resources within organisations and an understanding of the external environment in which business operates. These compulsory modules are supplemented with an optional specialist HR module.

In the final year students on this pathway will study two compulsory modules designed to advance skills and knowledge appropriate to graduate level and building upon knowledge gained in the second year in topics fundamental to managerial decision-making: management strategy and managerial leadership. For the HR pathway the 3 core modules supplemented by a specialist HR module.

Students following the top-up specialist degree entering directly into year 3 – after confirmation of pre-accreditation of their first two years' study to equivalent learning outcomes elsewhere – will study the same two compulsory modules but will study only one HR specialist option and study a fourth module “applied management” which will allow some degree of programme orientation and integration.
